DENY DAMAGES TO MAN HURT IN MISHAWAKA

Rubber Regenerating Co. Employee Loses Suit Against the Company.

In a verdict returned in circuit court Friday morning the jury denied the suit of Walter Mattingly for damages against the Rubber Regenerating Co. of Mishawaka for injuries received while working in the company's plant. With the verdict for the defendant the jury returned answers to several interrogatories.

Mattingly was working about a cauldron filled with acid in which rubber materials were being melted, when the cover blew off in an explosion. The plaintiff endeavored to show that proper care had not been taken by the company and that Mattingly was inexperienced in the work he was ordered to perform.

The acid burned him about the face and necessitated bandages on his left eye for a month and a half, according to the testimony of Mattingly. The testimony of two local oculists who examined Mattingly's eyes was an important feature of the evidence.

BIG PUMPING ENGINE IN PRELIMINARY TEST

Engineer Mertel Opens Steam Valves and Engine is Off—Plant is All Ready For Turning On Water.

Friday morning and not Thursday morning, the big new pumping engine at the new east end water works station was turned over for the first time. Engineer Mertel, or the Pratt Iron works, opened the steam valves at 9:45, but it was 10:15 before the big drive wheel made its first revolution and the engine started. With a few jerks at first and a groaning of stiff joints, the bearings limbered up and as the engineer turned more steam the engine picked up at a satisfactory rate and speed.

The water valves were not turned as the big steam leads from the boilers to the engine have not yet been covered and owing to the coldness of the weather it was feared that the pressure would not be great enough to start.

False reports were circulated Thursday that the plant was not in readiness and that the engine would require a thorough overhauling before it would be ready to pump pure water into the city mains. Plant engineers claim this is not true and that the engine had been installed and assembled properly and that the expert engineer named by the city, but was awaiting asbestos covering for the steam leads.

All valves, connections and bearings on the steam end of the engine proved to be without defects. Several bolts and connections will have to be loosened slightly as they are at first stiff, but after a few days' running will be limbered up.

Engineer Mertel of the Pratt Iron works, E. C. Supt. of the city water department, and Plant Engineer Daniel Smith have worked untiringly and unceasingly the past week endeavoring to have the pumping engine started and ready to pump pure water. One of the boys wearing a mask that covered all of his face except his eyes, covered Daniels and the fireman with a revolver and compelled them to climb to the ground.

L. L. Poole, the express messenger, was eating his lunch when the man and one boy entered the car. Poole did not see that they were masked.

"Go on away," he ordered, "I'll throw this hot coffee on you." He was about to carry out his threat when a bullet grazed his cheek. He fell to the floor thinking at first he was seriously wounded.

FOOTBALL SEASON TO OPEN

With the thrill of the whistle of Fullback Echenbach of the Notre Dame team, the Ullman Regulars and the Elkhart Maroons, a husky squad averaging 170 pounds, will open the football season Sunday on the north side of the city.

The Regulars have had their team practicing three evenings a week for the past month and the boys are anxious for the whistle. With all of the old players in the lineup and several new ones, the team is confident in taking the measure of the Elkhart county boys.

Manager Leon Tollens announced Friday that he had booked the following teams: Oct. 5, Goshen Tigers; Oct. 12, Topeka, Ind.; Oct. 19, Wilkeson A. C. of Chicago, and is negotiating with Wabash A. C., Indianapolis Mohawks, Fort Wayne A. C. Stars and a number of other fast teams.

The Regulars probably will play the game with their old rivals, the Huebners of South Bend, if proper ground rules can be decided. During the past several years when playing off the final game at Springbrook park, the followers of the Huebners crowded on the field and made playing impossible.

LEAVES CHILDREN AND GOES WITH CARNIVAL

A man by the name of Ritzman, and who formerly lived here, it is claimed, has disappeared from the city, leaving two children at the home of Mrs. George Schokley, 719 Lawrence st. He came to the city during carnival week and called at the Schokley home, asking that he be permitted to board and room there with his two children. The time was a neighbor of the Schokley's he was allowed to stay. It is claimed that he secured work with the carnival while here and that he has left, going with them. The last day of the carnival he appeared for dinner at the Schokley home and told Mrs. Schokley that he would settle for his and the children's board in the afternoon. Mrs. Schokley claims that he never returned and that she has written to relatives in Chicago, but they have not answered. She says that she will have the children placed in the Orphans' home in this city.

Refreshments were served.

BOY BANDITS SEIZE TRAIN GET $50,000

Compel Engineer to Run Express and Mail Cars to Lonely Spot Where it is Looted Deputy Sheriff Shot.

COTTONDALE, Ala., Sept. 27.—A man about 25, and two boys said to be not more than 15, are being sought by more than 100 armed deputy sheriffs and farmers as the robbers who held up the Alabama Great Southern fast express train at 1 o'clock Friday morning near Bibbville.

The three young bandits stole the front section of the train and after a wild run of 30 miles, blew the express safe and escaped with $50,000 in cash and negotiable papers.

Deputy Sheriff Brown of Birmingham was shot and killed by a deputy sheriff of Montgomery county. The Montgomery county posse thought the bandits in Brown's party were the bandits and fired at them.

Special trains carrying deputies are on their way to the scene from Birmingham, Mobile and Montgomery. The bandits were picked up a few minutes after the train was shot.

At the time of the robbery a negro porter who came forward from a Pullman sleeper engaged in a struggle with one of the younger bandits. The negro was overpowered and compelled to uncouple the passenger coaches from the front cars of the train.

The fast express train was brought to a stop by Engineer R. W. Daniels when he saw the block set against him. One of the boys wearing a mask that covered all of his face except his eyes, covered Daniels and the fireman with a revolver and compelled them to climb to the ground.

L. L. Poole, the express messenger, was eating his lunch when the man and one boy entered the car. Poole did not see that they were masked.

"Go on away," he ordered, "I'll throw this hot coffee on you." He was about to carry out his threat when a bullet grazed his cheek. He fell to the floor thinking at first he was seriously wounded.

Six mail clerks were ordered out of their cars and lined up along the right-of-way with their hands in the air.

Before he was ordered to jump to the ground Poole was asked by the older bandit to move a crate containing two dogs from near the express safe.

"We're going to blow that and we don't want to hurt the dogs," said the robber.

When he jumped from the car Poole caught his foot in a cattle guard and was painfully hurt. The other men who were working in the express and mail cars were left standing beside the track and the engine and two cars moved away with the older bandit at the throttle. Conductor Cook had gone through the sleeping cars and awakened all the passengers, telling them to hide their valuables. The doors of the cars were locked by the conductor. Then he walked back to Woodstock, more than three miles, and reported the robbery.

Engineer Donnelly, who had run his engine onto a siding below Woodstock, scented trouble when the bandits, whizzed by him. He secured a pair of armed citizens, and without calling the train dispatcher for orders, steamed after the fleeing robbers. The faster passenger engine soon distanced the slower mount of Engineer Donnelly and the robbers were miles ahead.

It was reported here that the bandits deserted the train in a patch of thick woods about 40 miles below here, but the report has not been verified.

HUERTA THINKS NO ONE WILL BE ELECTED

With Many Candidates in Field the Executive Thinks He'll Hold His Place.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 27.—A call was sent out Friday for a convention of the Liberal party to nominate a presidential ticket. It is believed that either Felix Diaz or War Minister Blanquet will be nominated. Dr. Vasquez Gomez probably will run as an independent candidate.

As the Mexican constitution requires that a candidate must get a majority of all votes cast to insure election, Pres. Huerta is welcoming as many candidates as possible to the contest in order to split up the total vote. If no candidate gets a majority Huerta will continue in power as the election will be nullified.

Pres. Huerta has the army behind him and the military governors of all the states. Former Foreign Minister Cambon, president nominee of the Catholic party, who resigned office Thursday began Friday to prepare for the election.

ONE KILLED 15 HURT AT FORD MOTOR CO. PLANT

BELLEFOUNTAIN, Ohio, Sept. 27.—J. E. Bicher, 38, was killed. George Mantz, mail carrier, was probably fatally injured and D. M. Adams, escaped serious injury when Adams' automobile plunged through an open bridge early Friday. In the dark the men failed to see an obstruction in front of the washout and the car went into two feet of water, pinning Bicher underneath it.

No Mere Man Can Understand Difficulties Laid Before the Queen of the Farm Carnival

BY MARGARET TOBIN.

The queen is busy choosing her royal robes today. But her wardrobe isn't all there is to think about. Queens are not just like ordinary people even though she is a queen for only a week.

When they told Miss Jane Smith, so sudden like, on Thursday, that she was to be the queen of the Fall Exposition, and gave her just four days to prepare to assume her throne, you may be sure that the committee of men didn't realize the task that confronted her.

What did she think of first? Why, her clothes, of course. She began to look about immediately. Today her mind is a whirl of children and lace, trains and crowns, and all the things that make up regal trappings.

She considered some of her difficulties to be. "It is so hard to decide," sighed little Miss Smith. "Now, I know a queen shouldn't wear street clothes at her coronation but it is pretty cold weather."

"You ought to have an evening dress and a wrap to go with it," I suggested. I hope the committee won't think I was prompting the queen to extravagance.

"That's what I was thinking," said the queen pro tem. "An evening dress of some pretty light color and a wrap to match. That would be just right. They thought at the store, when I looked around a little, that I should wear evening dress."

"I didn't see a thing that suited me yesterday," she added. "You ought to have something with a train," I suggested.

Always Have Trains. "Oh, surely," said little Miss Smith, gravely. "Queens always have trains." "I just can't make up my mind about a hat," the queen went on. "Big hats are lovely but I'm so tiny I think I ought to have a small one."

We decided that a small one would be just the thing for so little a queen. Her maids could wear big black ones. It would be a pleasing contrast. But of course the queen has a right to change her mind.

"I'm going to have a diamond ring, you know," she said, and her brown eyes danced with delight. "I don't

AL ENROLLMENT RECORDS BROKEN

Commercial Department at the High School Attracts Many Students—Domestic Science Popular.

The enrollment of the commercial department of the high school this year promises to eclipse any enrollment of recent years. Every branch and study is crowded to capacity and some have been denied the privilege of taking commercial subjects.

The number of new students beginning bookkeeping is about 75. This is one of the largest classes ever enrolled. There are about 50 more who are continuing this study.

The penmanship roll numbers 150 and something like 75 more have been turned down. Most of those refused are taking some other course in which penmanship is listed and these will be accommodated next semester.

The commercial law, commercial arithmetic, commercial geography and industrial history classes are all filled. Industrial history is one of the new studies added to the commercial curriculum and has attracted many students.

No estimate of the typewriting classes can be given as none of them have met and probably will not meet before Tuesday. No teacher for this subject has been secured, although one expected to have not yet filed their school convenes Monday.

The domestic science classes are very large, chiefly because of the features offered. Laundry, housekeeping, cooking and sewing can be taken in this department. The largest enrollment is in the cooking class where five classes, which meet five times a week, are taking the work. There are two classes which take this subject once or twice a week.

Regular sessions were billed for Friday, but owing to some necessary shifts which were not accomplished, school was dismissed at noon. Some of the students have not yet filed their "Report to Parents" card and these were dropped from all their classes.

COAL WAGON DRIVER SENTENCED TO THE PEN

Irwin Watson, formerly a coal wagon driver, who was indicted for embezzlement of $32 from Samuel C. Lantz & Sons, pleaded guilty before Judge Funk in the circuit court Friday. He was given a suspended sentence of one to 14 years.

Drink was the cause of Watson's lapse, according to his explanation to the court. The money had been paid him by a customer and he failed to turn it in. Watson arranged to pay back the amount.

As this was Watson's first offense, on recommendation of Prosecutor Montgomery, Judge Funk suspended the sentence.

SIMMONS CONFERS WITH WILSON ON THE TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—With the aim of gaining some suggestions which would aid in smoothing the path of conferees on the tariff measure, Sen. Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, held a conference with Pres. Wilson Friday.

He said he had not asked the president to interfere in the present deadlock between the house and senate conferees, but he hoped the executive might be able to offer some plan through which all difficulties could be straightened and a protracted disagreement avoided.

OPEN REVIVAL SERVICES.

Revival services in charge of the pastor, Rev. O. K. Moberg, and Rev. Oscar Larson of Cleveland, O., will begin at the Swedish Mission church, Scott and Orchard sts., Tuesday. They will continue for ten days.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT AS AUTO TAKES DROP

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27.—One man was killed and 15 injured by an explosion at the Ford Motor Co.'s plant Friday morning, caused by air getting in the air pipes in the foundry department. All the injured men are foreign born.

Ford officials refuse to discuss the accident more than to say little damage, if any, was done to the plant.

SAWS QUAKER STOCK IS RAPIDLY DYING OUT

RICHMOND, Ind., Sept. 27.—"The old Puritan and Quaker stock is fast dying out," declared Charles E. Tibbitts of Richmond, before the Indiana Yearly meeting of Friends here, in making a plea for better work in the mission field.

TURNED DEAF EAR TO DEAF OF SULZER

Henry Morgenthau Says Governor Asked Him to Testify That $10,000 Gift Was Not For Campaign.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Another crushing blow was sustained by the defense in the impeachment trial of Gov. Wm. Sulzer when D. W. Peck, state superintendent of public works, took the witness stand and testified that Gov. Sulzer had asked him to deny that he contributed $500 to the Sulzer campaign fund.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Henry Morgenthau, treasurer of the national democratic committee, testified Friday before the high court of impeachment which is trying Gov. William Sulzer that Sulzer after being impeached by the assembly, urged him (Morgenthau) to treat his contribution to the campaign, of $10,000, as a purely personal matter.

"On Sept. 2 Mr. Sulzer called me up and asked me to come to Albany," said Mr. Morgenthau. "I did not think it right to come, so he asked me if I was called upon to testify at the impeachment trial, to be easy on him. I told him I could not do any more than as a matter of personal kindness."

A sensation was caused by counsel for the governor when they announced that they did not intend to dispute seriously the charge that even checks received by Sulzer at the time he was collecting campaign contributions had been cashed at Griswold and Co., a firm of Boyer, Griswold and Co., as part payment for stock. Close connections between Mr. Sulzer and Wall st. were shown.

Gov. Sulzer gained a point
